Daniel xi., 32.

Antiochus Epiphanes, the old sinuer, came down three times with his army to desolate the Jews, advancing one time with a hundred and two trained elephants swinging their trunks this way and that, and sixtytwo thousand infantry, and six thousand cavalry troops, and they were driven back. Then the second time he advanced with seventy thousand armed men and had been again deteated. But the third time he laid successful siege until the navy of Rome came in with the flash of their long banks of oars and demanded that the siege be lifted. And Antiochus Epiphanes said he wanted time to consult with his friends about it, and Popilius, one of the Roman embassadors, took a for constitution with the formula of the Roman embassadors, took a staff and made a circle on the ground around Authorius Eninhanes, and compelled him to Antiochus Epiphanes, and compelled him to decide before he came out of that circle; wherepon he lifted the siege. Some of the Jews had submitted to the invador, but some when he had swine's flesh forced into his mouth, spit it out, although he knew he must die for it, and did die for it, and others, as my text says, were enabled to do exploits. An exploit I would define to be a heroic act, a brave feat, a great achievement. "Well," you say, "I admire such things but there is no chance for me: mine is a sort of humdrum life. If I had an Antiochus Epiphanes to fight I also could do exploits. You are right so far as great wars are concerned. There will probably be no epportunity to distinguish yourself in battle. The most of the brigadier-generals of this country would never have been heard of had it not been for the war. General Grant would have remained in the useful work of tanning hides at Galean, and St-newall Jackson would have continued the quiet college professor in Virginia. And whatever military talents you have will probably lie dormant forever. Neither will you probably leed ormant forever. Neither will you probably lie dormant forever. Neither will you probably leed ormant forever. Neither will you p of them resisted valorously, as did Eleazer, when he had swine's flesh forced into his quiet college professor in Virginia. And whatever military talents you have will probably lie dormant forever. Neither will you probably become a great inventor. Nineteen handred and ninety-nine out of every two thousand inventions found in the patent office at Washington never yielded their authors enough money to pay for the expenses of securing the patent. So you will probably never be a Morse or an Edison, or a Humphrey Davy or an Edison, or an E a financial, or a moral, or a domestic, or a so ial, or a political exigency. You sometimes see it in court rooms. A young man has get into bad company and he has o fearled the law, and he is arraized. All blushing and conused he is in the presence of judge and jury and lawyers. He can be sent right on in the wrong direction. He is feeling di graced, and he is almost desperate. Let the District Attorney overhaul him as though he were an old offender; let the albest attorneys at the har refuse to say a word for him because he cannot afford a considerable fee; let the judge give no opportunity for presenting the mitigating circumstances. hurry up the case and hustle him up to Auburn or Sing Sing. If he live seventy years for seventy years he wil he a criminal and each decade of his life will be blacker tan its predecesior. In the interregnums of prison life he can get no work, and he is glad to break a window-glass, work, and he is glad to break a window glass, or blow up a safe, or play the highwayman, so as to get back again within the walls where he can get something to cut and hide himself from the cruel gaze of the world. Why don't his father come and help him! His father is dead. Why don't his mother ceme and help him! She is dead. Where are all the ameliorating and salutary influences of society! They do not touch him. Why did not some one long ago in the case understand that there was an opportunity for the exploit which would be famous in heaven a quadrillion of years after the earth has become scattered ashes in the last whirtwind! Why did not the District Attorney take that young man into his private office and say: "My son, I see that you are the victim of circumstances. This is your first crime. You are son, I see that you are the victim of circumstances. This is your first crime. You are corry. I will bring the person you wronged into your presence and you will apologize and make all the reparation you can, and I will give you another chance." Or the young man is presented in the court room and he has no friends present, and the judge says: "Who is your counsel." And he says: "I have none." And the judge says: "Who will take this And the judge says: "And there is a dead And the judge says: "Who will take this young man's case." And there is a dead halt and no one offers, and after a while the judge turns to some attorney who never had a good case in all his life and never will, and whose advances would be appropriately. a good case in all his life and never will and whose advocacy would be enough to secure the condemnation of innocence itself. And the professional incompetent crawls up beside the prisoner, belriessness to rescue despair, when there ought to be a struggle among all the best men of the profession as to who should have the honor of trying to help that unfortunate. How much would such an attorney have rereived as his fee for such an advocacy! Nothing in dollars, but much every way in a happy consciousness that would make his own life brighter and his own dying pillow sweeter and his own beaven happier—the consciousness that he had saved a man!

So there are commercial exigencies. A consciousness that he had saved a man!

So there are commercial exigencies. A very late spring obliterates the demand for spring overcoats and spring hats and spring apparel of all sorts. Hundreds of thousands of people say: "It seems we are going to have no spring and we shall go straight out of winter into warm weather, and we can get along without the usual spring attire." Or there is no autumn weather, the heat plunging into the cold, and the usual clothing, which is a compromice between summer and winter, is not required. It makes a difference in the sale of millions and millions of dollars of goods, and some over-sanguine young merchant is caught with a vast amount of unsalable goods that never will be salable again except at prices ruinously reduced. That young merchant with a somewhat limited capital is in a predicament. What shall the old merchants do as they see that young man of winter into warm weather, and we can young merchant with a somewhat himled capital is in a predicament. What shall the old merchants do as they see that young man old merchants do as they see that young man in this awful crisis! Rub their hands and laugh and say: "Good for him. He might have known better. When he has been in business as long as we have, he will not load his she ves in that way. Ha! Ha! He will burst up before long. He had no business to open his store so near to ours anyhow." Sheriff's sale! Red flag in the window: "How much is bid for these out-of-the-fashion spring overcoats and spring hats or fall clothing out of date! What do hear in the way of a bid!" "Four dollars." "Absurd, I cannot take that bid of four dolin the way of a bid?" "Four dollars." and, I cannot take that bid of four dol-"Absurd, I cannot take that bid of four dollars. Why, these coats when first put upon the market were offered at fifteen dollars each, and now I am offered only four dollars. Is that all? Five dollars do I hear? Going at that! Gone at five dollars," and he takes the whole lot. The young merchant goes home that night and says to his wife: "Well, Mary, we will have to meve out of this house and sell our piano. That old merchant that has had an evil eye on me ever since I started has bought out all the clothing, and he will have it reinvented, and next vear put it on has bought out all the clothing, and he will have it rejuvenated, and next year put it on the market as new, while we will do well if we 'cep out of the poor-house." The young man, broken-spirited, goes to hard drinking. The young wife with her baby goes to her father's house, and not only is his store wiped out, lut his home, his morals, and his prospects for two worlds this and the next. And for two worlds, this and the next. And devils make a bangust of fire and fill their ups of gall and drink deep to the health of the o'd merchant who swallowed up the joing merchant who got stack on spring goods and went down. That is one way and some of you have tried it.

But there is another way. That young merchant who found that he had miscalculated in laying in too many goods of one ind and been flung of the unusual seasout standing behind the counter feeling very l'us and biting his finger mals or looking over his account books, which read darker and worse every time he looks at them, and thinks how his young wife ill have to be put in a plainer house than she ever expected to live in, or go to a third-rate boarding-bouse where they have tough liver and sour bread five rego to a third-rate boarding-bouse where they have tough liver and sour bread five mornings out of the seven. An old merchant comes in and says: "Well, Joe, this has been a hard season for young merchants, and this prolonged cool weather has put many in the dollrums, and I have been thinking of you a good deal of late, for just after I started to business I once got into the same scrape. Now if these is that was not enough, she would take her aume scrape. Now if there is saything I can do to help you out I hat were not enough she would call in all rwill gladity do it. Better just put those goods out of sight for the present and next season we will blan something about them. I will leip you to some goods that you can sell for the enoughment of the wholesale houses and if will go down to one of the wholesale houses and if will go down to one of the wholesale houses and if will go down to one want a few dollars to bridge over the present I can let you have them. Be as economical as you can, keep a stiff upper lip, and remember that you have two friends, God and myself.

THE BROOKLYN DIVINE'S SUNDAY SERMON.

SINDICCT: "The Three Greatest Things To Do."

Text.—"The people that do know their God shall be strong, and do exploits."—Daniel xi. 32.

Antiochus Epiphanes, the old sinner, came down three times with his army to desolate the Jews, advancing one time with a hundred and two trained elephants swinging their trunks this way and that and they our solutions and my business is splendid, their trunks this way and that and sixty.

And although she was a stranger, I did not allow the nine o'clock until to leave the lampost on our corner without carrying the thirty-seven do ars and thirty-three cents; and the case was proved genuine. Now I have read all Shakespeares tragedies, and all Alexander Smith's tragedies, but I never read a tragedy more thrilling than that case, and similar cases by the hundreds and thousands in all our large cities; young women without money and without home and without work in these great muelstroms of metiopolitan life. When such a case comes under your observation, how do you treat it? "Get out of my way, we have no room in our establishment for any more hands. I don't believe m women anyway, they are a lazy, idle, worthless set, John, please show this person out of the deor." Or do you compliment her personal appearance and say it ngs to her which if any man said to your sister or daughter you would kill him on the spat. That is one way, and it is tried every day in these large cities, and many of those who advertise for female hands in factories and for governesses in families have proved themselves until to be in any way are cutside of hell. in families have proved themselves unlit to be in any place outside of hell.

But there is another way, and I saw it the other day in the Methodist Book Concern in New York, where a young woman applied for work, and the gentleman in tone and manyer said in substance: "My daughter, we employ women here, but I do not know of any vacant place in our department. You had better inquire at such and such a place, and I hope you will be successful in getting something to do." The embarrassed and humilated woman seemed to give way to Christian confidence. She started out with a hopeful look that I think must have won for her a place in which to started out with a hopeful look that I think must have won for her a place in which to carn her bread. I rather think that considerate and Christian gentlemen saved a woman. New York and Brooklyn ground up last year about thirty thousand young women, and would like to grind up about as many this year. Out of all that long procession of women who march on with no hope for this world or the next, battered, bruised, scolled at and flung off the precipice, not one but might have been saved for home and God and heaven. But good men and good women are not in that kind of business. Alas for that poor thing! nothing but the throad of that evening girls needle held her, and the thread broke. I have heard mon is, but what is a woman! Until some one shall give a better definition I will tell you what a woman is. Direct from God, a with a faith in God that nothing could dis turb. Speak out, ye cradles, and tell of the feet that rocked you and the auxious faces during all his life accomplish nothing else gratulation.

But as geographers tell us that the depths of the sea correspond with the heights of the mountains, I have to tell you that good womenshood is deep down. The grander the palace, the more awful the conflagration that destroys it. The grander the steamer Oregon, the more terrible her going down just off the coast. Now I should not wonder if you trembled a little with a sense of responsibiltrembled a little with a sense of responsibility when I say that there is hardly a person in this house but may have an opportunity to save a woman. It may, in your case, by done by good advice, or by financial help, or by trying to bring to bear some one of a thousand Christian influences. You would not have to go far. If, for instance, you know among your acquaintances a young woman who is apt to appear on the streets about the hour when gentlemen return from business and you find her responding to the smile of entire strangers, hogs that lift their hat, go to her and plainly tell her that meanly all the destroyed womanhood of the world began the downward path with that very kind of behavior. trembled a little with a sense of respon downward path with that very kind of behavior.

Or if, for instance, you find a woman in financial distress and breaking down in health and spirits trying to support her children, now that her husband is dead or an invalid, doing that very important and honorable work, but which is little appreciated, keeping a boarding house, where all the guests, according as they pay small board, or propose, without paying any board at all, to decamp, are critical of everything and hard to please busy yourselves in trying to get her more patrons and tell her of divine sympathy. Yea, if you are a woman favored of fortune and all kindly surroundings, finding in the hollow flatteries of the world her chief regalement, living for herself and for time as galement, living for herself and for time as galement, living for herself and for time as if there were no eternity, strive to bring her into the kingdom of God, as did the other day a Sabbath-school teacher who was the means of the conversion of the daughter of a man of immense wealth, and the daughter resolved to join the charch, and she went home and said: "Father, I am going to join the church and I want you to come." "Oh, no," he said, "I never go to church."

"Well," said the daughter, "if I were to be "Well," said the daughter, "if I were to be married, would you not go to see me married." And he said: "Oh. yes." "Wel," said she, "this is of more importance than that." So he went and has gone ever's nee, and loves to go. I do not know but that faithful Sabbath-school teacher not only saved a woman but saved a man. There may be in this audience gathering from all parts of the world, the most cosmepolitan assembly in all the carth, there may be a man whose behavior toward womanhood has been perficious. Repeut! Stand up, thou masterpiece of sin and death, that I may charge you! As far as possible, make reparation. Do not boast that you have he rin your power and that she cannot help herself. When that fine collar and cravat and that elegant sult of clothes comes off and your uncovered soul stands in judgment and before God, you suit of clothes comes off and your uncovered soul stands in judgment and before God, you will be better off if you save that woman. There is another explot that you can do, and that is to save a child. A child does not seem to amount to much. It is nearly a year old before it can walk at all. For the first year and a half it cannot speak a word. For the first ten years it would starve if it had to earn its own food. For the first lifteen years its ominion on any subject is absocarn its own food. For the first lifteen years its opinion on any subject is also-lutely valueless. And then there are so many of them. My! what lots of children! And some people have contempt for children. They are good for nothing but to wear out the carpets and break things and keep you awake mghts crying. Well, your estimate of a child is quite different from that mother's estimate who lost her child this summer. They took it to the salt air of the seashore and to the tonic air of the mountains, out no help came, and the brief paragraph of its life is ended. Suppose that life could be restored by purchase, how much would that bereaved mother give! She would take all the jewels from her fingers and neck and bureau and put them down. And it teld that that was not enough, she would take her hou-e and make over the deed for it, and if that was not enough, she would take her house and make over the deed for it, and it

Where will those feet yet walk? Toward what destiny will that never-dying soul betake itself? Shall those lips be the throne of blasphemy or benediction? Come, all ye surveyors of the earth, and bring link and chain and measure if you can its possible possessions. Come, all ye astronomers of the earth, with your telescopes, and tell us if you can see the range of its eternal flight. Come, all ye chronologists, and calculate the decades on decades, the centuries on centuries, the cycles on cycles, the eternities on eternities of its lifetime. Oh, to save a child! Am I not right in putting that among the great exploits? Yes, it beats the other two, for if you save the woman. Get the first twenty years of that boy or girl all right and I guess you have got manhood or womanhood all right and their entire earthy and eternal man or you save the woman. Get the first twenty years of that boy or girl all right and I guess you have got manhood or womanhood all right, and their entire earthly and eternal career all right. But what are you going to do with those children who are worse off than if their father or mother had died the day they were born! There are tens of thousands of such. Their parentage was nagainst them. Their name is against them. Their name is against them. Their name is nagainst them. Their name is nagainst them. Their nareves and muscles contaminated by the inebricty or dissoluteness of their parents, they are practically at their birth laid out on a plank in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean in an equinoctial gale and told to make for shore. The first gre-ting they got from the world is to be called a brat or a ragamuffin or a wharf-rat. What to do with them is the question often asked. There is another question quite as pertinent, and that is, what are they going to do with us? They will ten or eleven years from now have as many votes as the same number of well-born children, and they will hand this land over to anarchy and political damnation just as sure as we neglect them. Suppose we cach one of us save a boy

Inthe candy and prayer, and a piece of cake and faith in God and common sense, and bogin this afternoon.

But how shall we get ready for one or all of these three exploits? We shall make a dead failure if in our own strength we try to save a man or woman or child. But my text suggests where we are to get equipment. "The people that do know their God shall be strong, and do exploits." We must know Him through Jesus Christ in our own salvation, and then we shall have His help in the salvation of others. And while you are saving strangers you may save some of your own kin. You think your brothers and sisters and children and grandenildren all safe, but they are not dead, and no one is safe till he is dead. On the English coast there was a wild storm and a wreck in the offling, and the cry was: "Man the lifeboat." But Harry the usual leader of the sailors crow, was not to be found, and they went without him and brought back all the shippwrecked people except one. By this time Harry, the leader of the crew, appeared and said: "Why did you leave that one?" The answer was: "He could not help himself at all and we could not get him into the boat." "Man the lifeboat," shouted Harry, "and we will go for that one," "No," said his age! mother standing by, "you must not go. I lost your father in a storm like this, and your brother Will went off six years ago and I have not heard a word from Will since he left, and I don't know where he is, and what has happened to him, poor Will, and I cannot let you also go for I am old and dependent on you." His reply was: "Hother, I must go and save that one man, and if I am lost God will take eare of you in old and dependent on you." His reply was:
"Mother, I must go and save that one man, and if I am lost food will take care of you in your old days." The lifeboat put out, and after an awful struggle with the sea they picked the poor fellow out of the rigging
just in time to save his life, and started for the shore. And as they came within speaking distance. Harry, just before he fainted from the over-exertion, criel out:
"We saved him, and tell mother it was brother Will." Ob, yes, my friends, let us start out to save some one for time and for eternity, some man, and some woman, and some child. And who knows but it may directly or indirectly, be the salvation of one of our own kindred, and that will be an exploit worthy of celebration when the world itself is shipwrecked and the

At the last meeting of the Franklin, Mass., farmers' club, D. C. Colton gave some of the results of the planting half fumigating with sulphur thrown upon a an acre to potatoes and garden truck. He paid for fertilizer, seeds, planting cultivating, harvesting, marketing, taxes, $45, and added to the expenses $25 for interest. He received $35 for 60 bushels of potatoes, and $5 for small potators, and $50 for garden truck, leaving a profit of $20 over and above the interest. The second year he let it out at halves and his expenses were $7.50 and receipts $25, so that it did not pay the interest. The third year was about the same.

An orchardist, recommending lowheaded trees, pointed to his peach orchard, with branches coming out of the central stem only a few inches from the ground, and stated that at least one-half the peaches were picked while he was standing on the ground, and the rest with a short standing ladder. As the roots of the peach have been repeatedly proved to extend much farther from the stom than the heigth of the tree, at least nine-tenths of the whole surface of the orchard occupied by the roots was subjected to horse cultivation; and the small portion covered with the central branches caused little loss. When required to clear out a few weeds near the tree, it was done by hand with less labor than to gather the whole crop with long ladders from tall trees. -[New York Observer.

Many men will do more with ten acres and get more out of and from them than others will with a hundred. It requires as much labor, however, for the ten as the hundred. It is intelligent labor and good management that count on a farm, bence it is that small farms pay the best and that large farmers continually complain that there is no money in farming.

tending his system, in combating the Rinderpest in Europe, encouraged Mr. J. H. Lamprey to bring the subjet under the notice of the government of India, where no efficient remedy was 16 known for this rapidly fatal illaess, which annually carries off a large percentage of cattle of every kind,

In order to carry out this object, some native Indian students, who have received their education at the Cirencester Agricultural College, are now undergoing a course of instruction at the Paris Laboratory of M. Pasteur and will shortly proceed to stations in India, to dispense the vaccine, which is applied to elephants as well as to oxen and other beasts. It is confidently expected that their labors will be attended with the same success that followed the introluction of the system into those countries where it is now in full operation; with an ultimate prospect of the total extermination of the most serious maladies, working great havoc among flocks and herds throughout the world. The elephant, in a domesticated state, is liable, as well as other animals in the service of man, to certain epidemic cases. - [London News.

Statistics from Mexico. According to the last statistics pub-

Penafiel, the city of Mexico and its suburbs comprise 1933 commercial establishments, 1699 industrial establishments, 271 variety stores, making a total of 3993 busines; houses, There are 52 banking houses, 76 bazaars, 88 drug stores, 26 libraries, 13 jewelry stores, 616 jobbing houses and retail stores, 39 saddleries, 19 brandy factories, 6 tissue factories, 65 printing estabishments, 172 carpenter shops, 156 -hoemaker shop; there are, besides, 225 lawyers, 48 public notaries, 70 brokers and commercial agencies, 207 hysicians (allopathists), 23 hor copathists, 29 dentists, 62 mid wiv:s, 48 pharmacists, 18 veterinarians, 70 engineers, try houses get intested it is a somewhat 18 builders and contractors, 119 courts 1 justice, 17 Protestant ministers, and

In spite of the multifarious duties and tasks that are imposed on these tiny burghers, they still find time to clean and adorn their worthy little per-sons. No spot, no atom of dust or anything else uncleanly will they tolerate on their bodies. They get rid of the dirt with the brushy tufts on their feet or with their tongues. They act for all the world like domestic cats when they clean and lick themselves, and they as-sist one another at the toilet precisely like monkeys. Their sense of clean liness goes so far that the naturalist often finds, to his unpleasant surprise, the colored marks that he had applied with so much care on his "trial ants" removed by their dirt-hating friends. They keep their dwellings just as cleanly.

But the conveying away of their deceased brethren, whose bodies they ap-pear to regard with the greatest antipnthy, gives them more trouble than anything else. When some members of an ant community which Mr. Cook kept imprisoned died and could not be removed, those remaining seemed affected with the greatest horror. For days the insects ran about seeking a ing investigations in this direction, into the annals of old family histories, until he has secured some very valuable formulas, from which his firm is now preparing medicines, to be sold by all druggists.

They will, we learn, be known under the general title of "Warner's Log Cabin remedies." Among those medicines will be "sarsaparilla," for the blood and liver, "Log Cabin hops and buchu remedy." for the stometh, etc., "Log Cabin rough and consumption remedy." "Log Cabin hair tonic," "Log Cabin extract." for internal and external use, and an old valuable discovery for catarrh, called "Log Cabin rose cream." Among the list is also a "Log Cabin Plaster," and a "Log Cabin liver pill."

From the number of remedies, it will be seen that they do not propose to cure all diseases with one preparation. It is believed by many that with these remedies a new crais to dawn upon suffering humanity and that the close of the nineteenth century will see these roots and heries, as compunded under the title of Warner's Log Cabin remedies. as popular as they were at its beginning. Although they were at its beginning Although they were at its beginning. Although they were at its beginning humanity has become tired of modern doctoring and the public has great confidence in any remedies put up by the firm of which H. H. Warner is the head. The people have become suspicious of the effects of doctoring with poisoious drugs. Few realize the injurious effects following the prescriptions of many modern physicians. These effects of poisonous drugs, already prominent, will become more pronounced in coming generations. Therefore we can constitute with the other. way out, and ceased only when completely exhausted. The ants belonging o the camponorous species seized the dead and threw them into the waterhouse, and in a similar way. To pre- pail, which they converted into a sepulcher. Ordinarily, though, the ants are said to treat their dead with more reverence. They even possess their own graveyards, which lie in the vicinity of their nests. They convey their deceased companions thither, where they lay them down in orderly little heaps or rows.

It is only the corpses of their fellows, however, that they treat in this man-ner. Dead strangers they throw out like something unclean, or tear the body in pieces. Even between the masters and slaves of the same community Miss Trent says she has observed a dis-similar mode of burial. While the masters find their last repose in a spe-cial graveyard, side by side, the slaves ie like heaped up refuse near the nest, despised equally in death as in life.

The ant cemeteries are often thickly populated, for their life is short. The male lives only through one summer; the females live somewhat longer; and the workers die of old age in the eighth

Some of the greatest men that ever lived were of small stature and insignificant appearance. The reader will readily recall many instances. Very small are Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets, but they are far more effective than the huge, oid-fashioned pills which are so difficult to swallow and so harsh in their action. The "Pellets" are gentle and never cause constipation. For liver, stomach and bowel derangements they have no equal.

"DOCTORING OLD TIME."

Striking Picture-A Revival of Old In one of Harper's issues is given a very fine illustration of Roberts's celebrated painting, known as "Bo-toring Old Time." It represents a typical old-time, with his belows, blowing the dust from an ancient clock, with its cords and weights carefully secured. One of these clocks in this generation is appreciated only as a rare relic. The suggestive name, "Doctoring Old Time," brings to our mind another version of the title, used for another purpose—"Old Time Doctoring."

We learn, through a reliable source, that one of the enterprising proprietary medicine firms of the country has been for years investigating the formulas and medical preparations used in the beginning of this century, and even before, with a view of ascertaining why people in our great grandfathers' time enjoyed a health and physical vigor so seldom found in the present generation. They now think they have secured the secret or secrets. They find that the prevailing opinion that then existed, that "Nature has a remedy for every existing d sorder," was true, and acting under this behef, our grandparents used the common herbs and plants. Continual trespass upon the forest domain has made these herbs less abundant and has driven them further from civilization, until they have been discarded as remedial agents because of the difficulty of obtaining them.

H. H. Warner, proprietor of Warner's safe cure and founder of the Warner observatory, Rochester, N. Y., has been pressing investigations in this direction, into the annals of old family histories, until he has secured some very valuable formulas, from which his firm is now preserve.

It is a significant fact that most of the women who have achieved fame in art.literature, or "affairs," have enjoyed vigorous health. This shows that the mind is never capable of the severe and continued application necessary to creative work, unless the body is at its best.
